Japs Put Up Stiffer Fight As U. S. Pierces Inner Defense

Saipan Casualties Reach 9,752, Indicating Battles Will Become Tougher As Yanks Advance.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The Japanese seem to have decided to fight harder, to have abandoned the tactics used in some instances of withdrawing from island bases with only minor resistance, or no resistance at all.

This is demonstrated emphatically in the disclosure by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander-in-chief, that 9,752 American troops have become casualties of war as a result of the enemy's stand on Saipan.

And less than half that 12-square mile island in the western Pacific Marianas group is in American hands. Fighting—hard fighting—continues through the sugar cane fields and along the rolling hills of Saipan. Recently the American front line cut across the island in half at the town of Carapan—administrative center. Street fighting has been seen there as the Japanese battle bitterly to stay the American advance.

It is to the north that some even harder fighting may come. The Japanese have held Saipan for many years. In that time they have prepared emplacements and defense positions that will be hard to take. In many places they are using caves in the hills as points from which to oppose the advance. They can be expected to fight to the last to lose the island—as they ultimately will—opens the Philippines, and more important, the Japanese homeland to attack by bombers based in the Marianas. It will open also the way for the Pacific groups dominated by the Japanese. It will permit even harder assaults on Japan—already battered supply lines between the homeland and enemy-held territory in the south.

Saipan is inside the Japanese perimeter of defense. That probably is the key to the whole situation. Military men among them, Lt. Gen. A. Vandegrift, commander of the Marines, long have predicted that as the inner defenses are reached, Japanese resistance would become stiffer.

1,474 Americans Die in Saipan Battle

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 1.—American forces punched through Japanese resistance today on Saipan island, already the Pacific war's bloodiest battlefield, with 9,752 American dead, wounded and missing.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced Friday that casualties for the first two weeks were dead, 1,474; wounded, 7,400; missing, 187.

Japanese losses were several times higher—1,951 bodies have been buried—but the defenders were fighting with increased tenacity.

New gains were reported in the center of the battle line and on the eastern flank as American forces pushed through extremely difficult terrain.

From Saipan's D-day, June 11, through last Wednesday, American losses far exceeded the bitter Tarawa fight or the six-month Guadalcanal campaign.

The Marine assault force, as at Tarawa, bore the heaviest losses. (Turn to PACIFIC, Page 9)

BATTERED NAZI ARMY DRIVEN BACK TO MINSK

Roar of Battle Echoes Through Streets of Outflanked Russian City.

By The Associated Press
MOSCOW, July 1.—Front dispatches said today that remnants of a demoralized German army are pouring into Minsk, now outflanked from the northwest, and that the roar of battle is echoing through the city's outskirts.

(Russian troops have surrounded Minsk and taken possession of the leading rail and road routes leading to Warsaw from the White Russian capital, the British radio said today.)

Storm troops and the gendarmes were reported trying to create some kind of order out of the battered, frightened Nazi legions defending the capital of White Russia, now Hitler's most important bastion on his eastern front.

Three Soviet armies converged rapidly upon Minsk from the northeast, east and southeast. Gen. Ivan Cherniakov's third army streamed through the thick forests northeast of the city over numerous bridges now stretched across the Berezina river.

The army paper Red Star revealed the main crossing was made over a bridge which guerrillas held in a pitched battle until Red army troops arrived.

Cavalry Moves Ahead
The Red Star dispatch said Soviet cavalry moved through the forests north of Minsk and outflanked the city from the northwest.

Correspondents reported hundreds of demoralized Germans surrendering before they reached the city.

The Red army was represented as having some difficulty in moving up for a direct blow upon Minsk because of the large number of captives crowding the roads.

Of fighting in the city of Borisov, main military center northeast of Minsk and the Nazis' biggest defense point before the city, Red Star Correspondent Yurik Mitkevich said "one street after another is being captured."

It appeared that before the end of the day Marshal Rokossovsky's first army and Gen. Georg Zakharov's second army would join Cherniakov's Third army before the gates of Minsk. It was difficult to say whether the Russians will attempt to storm the city with a frontal assault or try to break into it from the rear, as the Red army often does.

There was every sign the Germans were trying to hold Minsk and there was the possibility that the line command, with the aid of the gendarmes and storm troops, may create enough order to stand behind the long prepared and excellently built defenses.

Nazi Reserves Repulsed
In the deep south White Russian front the Germans, seeking to patch the shattered approaches to Baranovichi (Baranovich) and Pinsk, introduced fresh reserves from deep in the rear, but Red Star Correspondent Peter Troyanovsky said they were hurled back.

Here, just north of the Pinsk marshes, the Red army is astride two main east highways toward Warsaw, Bobruisk and Brest-Litovsk, and the Gomel-Pinsk highway. The highways are 50 miles apart with Soviet forces controlling the territory between.

The Russians asserted 163,950 of Hitler's eastern front soldiers had been killed or captured in the first week of the new drive.

Soviet armor struck heavily at the troop concentrations and supply lines at Minsk. Baranovichi in the southwest, Polotsk to the north, Luninets and Molluchno.

Nearly 50 places were reported captured on the two fronts in Finland in the vicinity of Viipuri and between Lakes Ladoga and Onegazko (Onega), with advances scored in steady hammering of the enemy.

NAZIS AND FINNS ROUTED BY REDS. German defenses in White Russia are collapsing hourly under the overpowering Red ground fighting forces and the continued Russian Air Force bombings. And while Nazis take a beating in White Russia in what is described as the "greatest defeat in history," the Germans' war-rig partners, the Finns, also are being routed from the last stretch of the Murmansk-Leningrad railway.

NAZI ROAD, RAIL CHANNELS HIT

RAF Keeps Up Attack on Road Yards Carrying German Supplies.

By The Associated Press
LONDON, July 1.—RAF heavy bombers, maintaining a steady campaign aimed at strangling the Nazis' channels of reinforcement for the Normandy front, bombed rail centers at Vlerzon, 48 miles south of Orleans, last night in the allies' fifth heavy bomber operation in 24 hours.

At the same time British Mosquitos kept up the allied air pressure on Germany itself by attacking a synthetic oil plant near Hamburg on the Elbe. One Mosquito failed to return. The five heavy bomber operations cost 10 planes.

Hit Bomb Bases
RAF heavy bombers struck twice at the Germans' flying bomb launching ramps in northern France yesterday and American Flying Fortresses and Liberators smashed at five enemy fields in France and Belgium before a force of over 250 British Lancasters and Halifaxes turned from strategic to tactical work shortly after midnight.

The Germans continued sending their flying bombs into southern England last night and today.

Allied fighter-bombers attacked rail lines and other installations behind the battlefront until dusk yesterday. Supreme headquarters said these continuing assaults had been so effective in the triangle bounded by the Seine and Loire rivers that the Germans now are using rail transport for only one-tenth of their movements. Other enemy movements in that sector are by road, and virtually all are made under protection of darkness, an air officer said.

German Road Bombed
In the final fighter-bomber attacks late yesterday American Mustangs, Lightnings and Thunderbolts dive-bombed and strafed roads, bridges, rail yards, canals and numerous other targets of opportunity in the Paris area.

Only minor enemy opposition was encountered. Three German planes were shot down and another destroyed on the ground. One American plane was lost.

One Lightning group bombed and shut one end of a tunnel just as a train entered the other and another hit 50 to 75 flat cars loaded with half-track vehicles.

TANKS HALTED BY NIGHT-LONG ARTILLERY FIRE

Massed Guns Break Up Odon River Assault; German Armor Losses Heavy.

By The Associated Press
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 1.—A blinding night-long British barrage smashed by an armored spearhead attempting to crash into the Odon river bridgehead menacing Caen, but one dispatches from Normandy reported today as the Nazi command threw elements of seven tank divisions into the furious battle.

Massed artillery fire broke up the assault on the west flank of the Odon river corridor just as it started.

The Germans renewed their slabs this morning, the dispatches said, with an attack on the British left flank at Mancelet, west of Caen. Four Nazi Mark IV tanks were wrecked, raising the toll taken by British forces alone to 140 since D-day.

On all sectors in Normandy 326 enemy tanks have been destroyed or disabled.

If the German armored units which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has thrown into the fight were to strength they would represent about 2,000 tanks and self-propelled guns. Some of the units have been brought from Russia.

Yanks Near St. Lo
American forces, in local attacks in the central sector of the bridgehead, drove to within two and one-half miles of St. Lo, reaching the villages of La Frette, on the main highway to Idigny and Le Carillon, due north of the city.

Indications were seen here today that Rommel himself had taken personal command of the bridgehead effort, particularly after the death of Col. Friedrich Dollmann, commander of the German 1st Army, which Berlin announced yesterday.

It was apparent, too, that Rommel was trying to use his panzers as he did in the Libyan desert to force quick, violent decisions.

"Allied troops are strengthening their positions on both banks of the Odon river," said allied communiqué No. 51 today. "All enemy attempts to break through were frustrated in the Caen-Evrecy sector. There is nothing to report on the rest of the front."

The RAF yesterday sent big Lancasters and Halifaxes, usually used for night bombing, on one of their few daylight tactical missions, the bombing of German headquarters at Caen. More than 20 of these heavy bombers dropped 1,000 tons of bombs at 1:35 p. m. on a concentration of German tanks at Villers-Bocage.

Nazi Losses Heavy
A check of the battlefield revealed that the Germans suffered heavy casualties on their violent counter-attack to the river Odon two nights ago. This attack was repelled in four hours of bitter fighting by a British division which never had been in action before.

The glim determination of the German high command to block the allied advances was seen in the fact that despite their serious defeats on the Russian front they have been withdrawing divisions from the eastern front and sending them to France.

Rommel was using his best tank, Panther and Tiger, in the assault on the Caen sector. Today there was a temporary lull in the fighting as both sides regrouped their forces for a big effort.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins, commander of the Seventh U. S. Army Corps, continued his steady mopping up of the Cap De la Hague sector on the northwest tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, last center of German resistance.

The fall of Port Quereville removed the last heavy gun menace to Cherbourg harbor. It was learned that some of the batteries in this port put up a tremendous fight before being overwhelmed by air bombardment and land and sea shelling.

As yet there was no full report on the condition of Cherbourg harbor. Minesweepers were the first ships into the port, which had been heavily mined.

As heavy air support of the land operations was continued it was estimated by the air forces that their attacks had cut nine-tenths of all rail transport into the battle area—and now almost everything the Germans bring up is forced to move at night by road.

Wallace Meets Yank Wounded on Super Fort Raid on Japan

A UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCE HOSPITAL IN WESTERN CHINA, June 27—(Delayed)—A boy from Missouri lay in a darkened room, arms and legs swathed in bandages, his injuries part of the price America paid for the Super Fortress raid at Yawata, Japan. He could detect only a faint glimmer through the gauze pads saturated with sulfathiazol and boric acid.

Maj. Whitington Jr., Shreveport, La., chief of the surgical service of this air force hospital, said:

"I want you to meet the vice president of the United States," Mrs. Myron Bean of Mt. Carmel, He attended Marquette high school and enlisted in the Coast Guard in March, 1943.

in for reconnaissance over Yawata after the Super Fortress raid there.

Holzbaumer lay a full week at the dispensary of the Super Fortress base, too frightfully burned to be moved to a hospital, but he now seems surely on the way to recovery.

Also present at the meeting between Wallace and Holzbaumer was Lt. Col. John C. McKissack, assistant commanding officer of the hospital and his adjutant, Lt. L. M. Lackwitz, "University" Heights, Cleveland, O.

"I'm pretty hardened," said Lackwitz, "but this one would put a lump in anyone's throat." Holzbaumer's wife had written him he was the father of a boy, but a subsequent letter told of the death of the child.

Wallace made a note to telephone Mrs. Holzbaumer when he gets back to Washington.

Hearing this was like medicine to Holzbaumer.

"How about that?" he told a nurse happily. "The vice president is going to call my wife to tell her about me. Not bad for someone who met the vice president without seeing him."

Finland's Baffling Logic

FINLAND cannot be blamed for believing Russia is the most serious threat to its security. It cannot be blamed for failing to drop out of the war as a voice slow to Allied convenience in waging the war. It cannot even be blamed for apparently moving closer to Germany in resistance to Allied demands—and Finland as a whole. Undoubtedly, Finland as a whole has no more to say about its official decisions at this point than any other nation as a whole has to say about tricky moves in the cut-throat game of politics.

Finland's official logic is, of course, baffling, because it starts with the premise that there is security in a complete military alliance with Germany. The Finnish government, in other words, has gone beyond the point of realism about the country's own security toward the point of ideological sympathy with the German cause. It is sacrificing a proud people to historicism. Under the circumstances, the severance of diplomatic relations, announced in Washington, was inevitable, whatever may prove to be the underlying reasons when diplomatic secrets
are finally disclosed sometime in the future.
It goes without saying, of course, that Finland's decision is a rebuff to the Allies, which have yet to score a clean-cut diplomatic decision at the expense of Herr von Ribbentrop's busy organization.

Contest for the Vice Presidency

GOV. BRICKER, as the Republican party's exceptionally strong vice presidential candidate, will point up the weakness of his Democratic counterpart, who is expected to be Henry A. Wallace. Whereas Gov. Bricker had a valid claim to his party's nomination for president and would have been given the nomination, except for circumstances which made Gov. Dewey the head of the ticket, instead, Mr. Wallace never has had the confidence of the Democratic party
as a whole.

He came into official life as an appointee who has remained there as a protégé of Mr. Roosevelt. The prospect that his renomination may be forced on the Democratic convention again this year is a point of bitter contention within the party. The further prospect that he might be renominated and called on to serve as chief executive, in the event of President Roosevelt's reelection after 11 arduous years, is a matter of public concern.

The inevitable comparison between Mr. Wallace and Gov. Bricker in the campaign would be invidious—and damaging to Mr. Wallace. While the latter has not served in the pattern of obscurity which sometimes has surrounded the vice presidency, he has been strictly a minor figure, sometimes at odds with his chief and never in a position to add anything to party leadership.
Mr. Bricker, it goes without saying, would be no Throtheadism if the Republicans won the election. He holds political prestige and confidence in his own right. He would restore the vice presidency to something like the respect it commanded in the days when vice presidents were expected to become presidents.

Unknowns

THE most decisive unknown quantity in the war is now the Japanese fleet. Germany's winged rockets—only recently disclosed—probably can make no important difference from now on; their effect was heavily discounted in advance. Germany's other great unknown, its surviving air force, is now presumed to be reduced to the point of impotency because it did not appear in sufficient force to make serious opposition to the invasion at the critical time when opposition could have brought defeat.

There are other unknowns, of course, such as the true extent of Japan's air raid defense, but the greatest of them all is the strength of the Japanese fleet and the use to which it will be put in the unfolding strategy of Pacific naval warfare.
If the United States navy can take the measure of the Japanese navy quickly and decisively, that will be the turning point of the war. The effect on Japanese ability to sustain the war would be at least as great as the effect on Germany when it gambled and lost at Stalingrad. Conversely, a victory by the Japanese would add months and perhaps years to the task of isolating its armies from their homeland
and creating the circumstances of defeat.

The greatest single event of the war might well be the naval clash that must come sooner or later as United States forces make their way
step by step up the island ladder from the South Pacific to the Japanese stronghold. Certainly, a battle in force would be the greatest naval engagement since Jutland in World War I, when Germany's ambition to be a first-class naval power was destroyed.

So They Say—

We must become increasingly conscious of the need for vigorous effort to teach more convincingly by the example of our own lives
the rightness and the timeless truth of the philosophical principles of Jesus Christ.—F.E.A.
Administrator Leo T. Crowley.

There can and should be a peacetime use
for all the factories built for war production.
None of them need be idle and there need be no idleness anywhere after the war.—Henry Ford.

Today and Tomorrow

Serious Dangers Seen in Promises
Contained in Republican Platform.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE Republican convention, or perhaps more accurately Simon Taft and the smaller number of old guardmen who were in charge of the platform, have given Gov. Dewey an opportunity to prove his qualifications. They have nominated him on a platform which would be suitable for their real enemy, Gov. Bricker.
For Gov. Dewey the platform is a formidable obstacle to be overcome, to be superseded, to be rescaped. By showing whether he can lead and govern his party, Mr. Dewey will soon show—to those who judge by acts and not by phrases—whether he can lead
and govern the country.

For this platform, quite apart from its intentional ambiguity on foreign policy, as regards domestic affairs is reckless and as misleading as irresponsible politicians dared to make it. It is a blueprint for postwar inflation.
It is an invitation to all the pressure groups, a permit to all weak-minded and chicken-hearted candidates for office, to plunge the country into the chaos of an uncontrolled and uncontrollable inflation of prices and wages.

The authors of the platform pledged themselves to "maintain the value of the American dollar" and to "regard the payment of government debt as an obligation of honor which prohibits any policy leading to the depreciation of the currency. We shall reduce that debt as soon as economic conditions make such reduction possible.

Conflicting Promises

But how do Senators Taft and his colleagues propose to discharge this obligation of honor and to reduce the debt?

They propose to reduce the debt by reducing taxes: "As soon as the war ends"—mark the words—
all the present rates of taxation are to be brought down to the level to cover—again mark the words—"the normal expenditure of government in the postwar period." Thus they do not intend to reduce the debt. Moreover, they do not intend to maintain any control of that vast accumulation of inflationary purchasing power which will be most dangerously explosive precisely in the period just after the war ends.
As the platform pledge of a party allegedly devoted to sound money
this demagogic promise about taxes is a disgrace.

But that is only one part of the program for inflation. They condemn the freezing of wage rates as "artificial levels." This is a clever invitation to organized labor to break up the stabilization of the wage front, and the mere fact that it is in the Republican platform would almost certainly do much to provoke strikes and labor disorder in the near future.

The content with inflating the wage structure, these Republicans who pride of sound money have adopted a far more which,
though the words are weaker words, means to anyone who knows the propaganda and pressure of the farm lobbies that the Republicans mean to encourage the end of the control of commodities prices and of the cost of living.

Invitation to Inflation
These deadly, dangerous promises to reduce taxes and to raise wages and farm prices are set in a platform which promises by implication to remove all wartime controls before demobilization and reconversion are completed.
There is not one line, not one word in the whole platform which recognizes honestly the need of civilian control and sacrifice in wartime. Only the soldiers, it appears, are expected to sacrifice
their convenience to the nation.

If this is the spirit and the substance of the Republican postwar domestic program, Mrs. Luce will have some explaining to do when her G. I. boys come home to find a country so selfish, so sunk in its own materialism, that it did not have the discipline and decency
to deal with the obvious danger
of a postwar inflation.

Though platforms are generally insincere, these elements of the Republican platform are not to be laughed off. They express the real views of the main body of the Republicans in congress. This is the line on which they have been lying to vote, hold back only by their fear of public opinion. This is what they will continue to strive for, now that they can invoke the party platform, unless Gov. Dewey finds a way to turn in another direction.

If he does, and there is reason to hope that he may, the very fact that his party made things so difficult for him can turn out to have been his greatest opportunity.

Cadet Nurse Corps Birthday

CADNET NURSES AT WORK: These alert young women are studying operating technique at the University of Virginia hospital, Charlottesville, Va. Since war, hospital lost 45 members of staff of graduate nurses.

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Woman's Editor
The baby of America's women's services has one candle on its birthday cake today—but it's a mammoth cake, in fitting tribute to nearly 100,000 members of the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps.

Organized July 1, 1943, the Cadet Nurse Corps in one year has outstripped enrollment in any of the other women's services, as girls from villages and cities,
farms and towns all over America rushed to answer the call.

Some of the success of the Cadet Nurse recruitment program is credited to the uniform—trim gray flannel for winter, gray and white striped seersucker for summer, with dashing red epaulettes and silver buttons. The government points out these other influences.

- 1—Training for a career.
- 2—A lifetime education—free.
- 3—An accelerated period of training.
- 4—An attractive uniform for optional wear.
- 5—A paid nursing assignment courier.
- 6—National identification with war services.
- 7—Girls can enter at the ages of 17 and 18, younger than they can enlist in any of the military services.
- 8—They serve while they learn.

In hospitals throughout the nation these alert, efficient young Cadet Nurses are training to receive more highly trained nurses
for duty with the Army or Navy, or for more highly specialized civilian work.

The shortage of nurses has been one of the gravest problems faced by the U. S. home front since the war. Enrollment of Cadet Nurses already has relieved the situation greatly, and is expected to continue in increasing effectiveness.

In the first year, the Cadet Nurse Corps far surpassed the quota of 65,000 asked by Uncle Sam. The figure is now set at 115,000, and more than 35,000
girls already are wearing the gray

SUMMER UNIFORM: Gray and white striped seersucker with red and silver trim, by Molly Farnis.

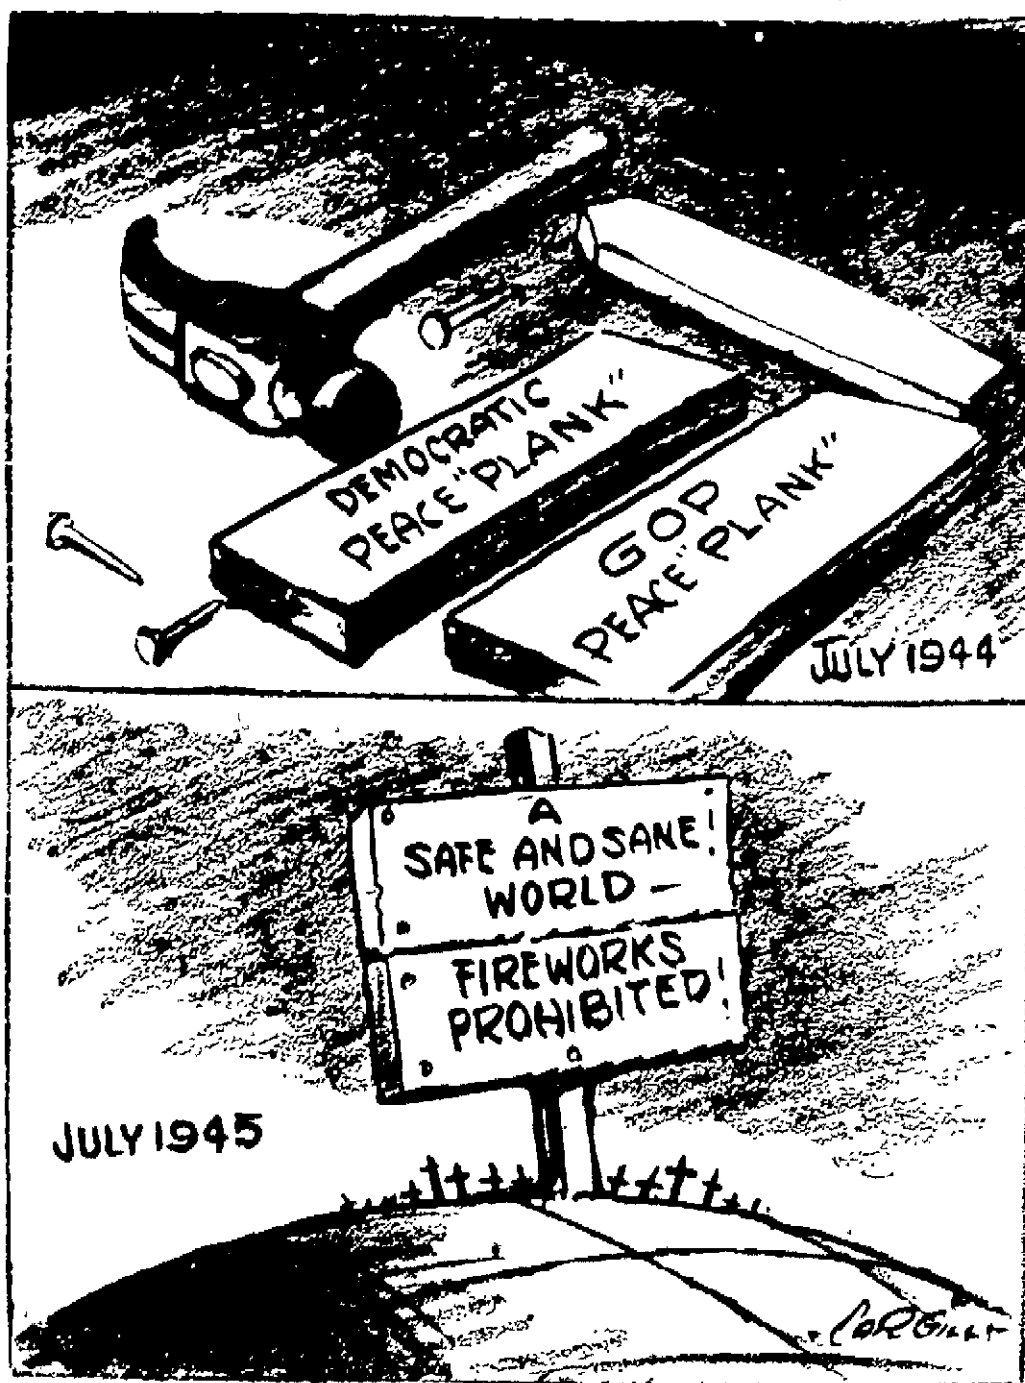

and silver uniforms.
Girls of 17 or 18, preferably not over 35, are eligible to enter. Entrance requirements vary with schools of nursing, but usually high school graduation is adequate.

Tuition from the date of registration until graduation is paid, and living expenses provided. The smart uniforms also are issued free to the students, who in addition are paid an allowance of $15 per month as Pre-Cadets, $20 per month as Junior Cadets and $30 per month as Senior Cadets.

Under provisions of the Corps,
the complete training can be finished in from 24 to 30 months.

"Revolt" Against Roosevelt

By Herman R. Allen

Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON—An anti-Roosevelt movement in the Democratic party could result—and entirely constitutionally—in election of the next President by the House of Representatives.

This would be possible because of the antiquated system of electors, which in modern times has amounted to only a technicality.
You will recall that voters don't vote for president (or vice president) directly. They vote for electors, who in turn choose these two officials. Electors are assumed to be committed to vote for a certain candidate, and a vote for them is regarded as the same as a vote for the candidate himself.

Sparked By Southerners

The anti-administration movement is sparked by certain Southerners. They voice the fear that the platform adopted by the Democratic convention will not meet their demands as regards the poll tax, racial equality and similar matters.

If they don't like the platform,
these Democrats propose to name electors who will vote for a third candidate, rather than for President Roosevelt if he is nominated for a fourth term.

The South of course is heavily Democratic, but if anti-Roosevelt strategy is carried through, Democrats in some southern states may have to vote against President Roosevelt, if he is nominated.
The convention has nothing to say about how electors are chosen.
That's up to state legislatures,
some of which administration opponents may be able to control.

The result might be to split the electoral vote three ways so that neither the Republican candidate nor the "regular" Democratic candidate gets more than half, in that case, the Constitution provides that the president be chosen by the house.

November House Election

New house members will be chosen in November, at the same time as electors. If every member had a vote then it would be fairly easy to tell how the vote for president would go if it were thrown into the house.

But it isn't done that way. The Constitution says that each state's house delegation shall have one vote. This means that the group having the greatest strength in each delegation—Republican, Democrat or anti-Roosevelt—will swing that delegation's vote.

There's no telling for sure what the complexion of the house will be after November. Even if the Republicans win control, it might not matter in a house vote for President.

Massachusetts or Michigan
could go 100 per cent Republican and still it wouldn't make any difference because their delegations are already mostly Republican. New York, on the other hand, is quite delicately balanced,
and three states—Washington,
West Virginia and Idaho—are tied,
so that the change in their delegations could throw them to one candidate or the other. The same is true in the four states which have only one representative—Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming.

If the electors fail to name a vice president, the Constitution says one shall be named by the senate. Here the issue is a little clearer. Each senator has a vote.
The expectation is that the senate will be little changed in November, and the Democrats control it now.

World War a Year Ago

JULY 1, 1943

In great Allied offensive in the South Pacific, Allied troops complete occupation of Rendova Island; shore guns and planes strike at Munda and Vila, on Kolombangara Island, northwest of New Georgia.

Washington reports capture of Viru Harbor on New Georgia.

Japanese calls attack a "typical United States guerrilla operation";
claims to have sunk or badly damaged six transports, three cruisers and a destroyer.

Allied bombers attack Sicily—main targets are Palermo and Messina.

On the Russian front, the Red Army captures a height "of great strategic importance" in the Kalwrong?

Hitler—Don't rub it in!

where did you get the idea the rest of the world
was a pushover?

Hitler—I read it in a book.

Goering—What book?

Hitler—My book!

Goebbels—That damned thing!

Goering—What burns me up is I asked for an autographed copy!

Hitler—You better pipe down. I am showing Germans who show disrespect for me.

Hitler—Look, boys, let's try to be more cheer-

Goering—That's what put us where we are

Hitler—Wait till you see what my robot planes do to our enemies. Have you heard the news?
London is in ruins, Eisenhower's fleet is sunk all England is fleeing to the hills and this is the day we gaze New York, Chicago and Boston.

Goebbels—Where did you get that news?

Goebbels—I gave it to him.

Circus Day Back Home

THIS department saw the "greatest show on earth" in a small town the other day. Nowhere except on the road can any circus save the right flavor and thrill, and again it took us back to the boyhood days when we used to go up at daybreak to see the circus pitch tent, smell the magic aroma from a circus cook tent and wait in the Globe Building to see the parade pass.

But it seemed to us that, with the circus parade long since abandoned, a good deal has gone out of the life of the American boy. A boy-hood with no steam calliope tooting in the distance must be somewhat barren.

You'd never know the old circus. It's been glamorized, prettified and all dolled up. The John Murray Anderson influence is everywhere in it. It is beautiful beyond the dreams of old-time circus men. But we wish it was a little less artistic, and that it would still wind up with the Roman chariot races, to us always the high point in the big show.

Any Ice Today, Lady?

By Truman Twill

Like many others, we had forgotten about the home delivery iceman. The only living link with the science of mechanical refrigeration is the man who comes to make repairs on the machinery when it unravels.

But here was an iceman going into a house with a 50-pound chunk—an iceman in a blue wool shirt, a pair of dark gray pants and heavy shoes—the traditional outfit. The ice pick was on his hip in a leather case.

With the difference that he was carrying the ice in a canvas basket, instead of balancing it on his shoulder with tongs, he might have been an iceman in the carefree days before mechanical refrigeration. It took us back to our career as an iceman.

Personal influence exerted in our behalf by a male parent who decided the time had come for the birdling to try his wings landed us in a position with an ice and coal company. In between loads of coal, we strained our arguments on chunks of ice and vice versa.

THINKING OF BUYING A BOND?

MEN ARE DYING WHILE YOU MAKE UP YOUR MIND

LET'S face it. The toughest stage of the war has arrived—it's 1944, America!

This year men aren't just thinking of attacking the enemy on the bloody invasion fronts. They're doing it—now—and it's costing a lot of them their lives.

Think of this hard when you're thinking of doubling your bond purchases during the 5th War Loan Drive. Think of the tired, the maimed, the captured and the dying. Then stop thinking and start buying.

Our job is to put excuses aside and make the 5th War Loan Drive the one to be proud of. Let's get in there and fight beside our boys. Let's all buy more bonds—and buy them today!

Middletown Wins 5-4 To End Series

THE MARION CUBS lost a heartbreaker by the score of 5 to 4 to Middletown at Lincoln Park last night. The game ended a three game series with Middletown winning two and Marion one.

It was Crowe's second loss in three tries and Petre's second triumph in as many contests. Burke came in in the seventh to try and stem the tide but it was of no avail.

With two down in the ninth it looked like Marion might pull another game out of the fire as they did eight nights last. Giarney smacked his second triple in two nights to left center field but it was to no avail as Morneweg grounded short to first.

Barnes' boys started off in the first inning when Rando's hit to right took a bad hop and went for three. Clayton then grounded out, Rando strayed. Then in the fourth they scored two as Senko singled and went to third on Dyer's fielder's choice. On this play, the pitcher got the ball and threw to second in an attempted double play but both attempted were safe with Senko taking third. Teer struck out, Senko coming as Bellamy threw to shortstop in an attempt to pull Senko off enough to trap him, but he sensed instead. Dyer, who had gone to second on the play before, scored as the shortstop threw wide to third on Kuddes' fielder's choice. Again in the fifth they scored two runs on walks by Rando, Senko and Dwyer and a single to left by Teer.

Marion's runs came on a walk, a single and double in the second inning, and another was added in the third as Jeski was safe on an error, stole second and was singled home by Morneweg. Then in the eighth they scored their final tally on a walk by Bellamy and double by Teer.

For the second straight night, Herod Toon has played a bang up game of ball. Last night he got two hits, one a double and also batted in one run.

Another new boy, also an out-of-towner, showed up well in his first appearance in a local uniform. He is Ray Hunt who played a lot of semi-pro ball in and around Penna. Ill. Last night, on his double, he batted in two of Marion's four rallies.

Don Carlsen, who was removed from the line-up night before last because of a sprained back, will be missing for probably three or four days, Manager Hartley said.

OPEN DATE MAKES Amateurs Give Pros a Run for Money in Chicago Tourney

CHICAGO, July 1—They were improving their golf game—down in the locker room—and the amateurs gave the pros a run for money in Chicago today.

All that is not gold that glitters, said one pro. He meant, of course, that Knoch and Knoch—two of the play-for-money pros—a hot-hot in the race for the Chicago victory national championship.

Byron Nelson, Mr. Golf himself with $11,341 in earnings this season, led a field of 57 competitors into today's second round of the meet after playing some of the best shots of his fabulous career yesterday. He blundered in the 35-36-71 Edgewater layout for 15 birdies, making six of them, and three eagles which he made from distances of 15, 15 and 13 feet.

But only two strokes behind Nelson came Charles Steve Knoch, who has labored in a Pittsburgh steel mill 10 of his 27 years and has played week-end golf only seven seasons. He tossed a 34-33-67 into the ring to be grouped with Jux McSpaden, the No. 1 money winner with $15,000 in purses, and Johnny Revolta, the 1935 Texas open champion and 1935 PGA and Western open titles.

Bracketed at 62 were Detroit's Chuck Kocals, the 1936 national intercollegiate champion while representing the University of Michigan; Sam Bernardi, Chicago veteran, and two service men on furloughs—Sgt. E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Wright Field, Ohio, and Lt. Ben Hogan of the Fort Worth, Texas, army field.

The United States scoring record for 72 holes—264—was set by Craig Wood in winning the Metropolitan open in 1940. But this mark appeared to be hanging on a thread in this tournament.

CLEVELAND BEATS ATHLETICS TO TAKE SIXTH PLACE TIE

Cincinnati, Well Treated by Braves. Meet Giants at Crosley Field.

WASHINGTON, July 1—The Cleveland Indians arrived here today tied for sixth place in the American league, after dropping the Philadelphia Athletics to last place with a 5 to 4, 12-inning battle last night.

Joe Heying's relief hurling was largely responsible for the victory. He went to the mound for Hal Kline in the ninth frame with two on and one out. For four innings Joe pitched one-hit ball, shutting out the Athletics and enough for the Tribe to add that winning run.

Ray Mack and Mickey Rosen combined to break up the Phil ball game. The veteran second baseman, on vacation from his Cleveland war job, singled, advanced to second on a sacrifice and scored the winning run on Rosen's safety.

Al Smith started against Buck Newsome. Joe Berry took over for the Athletics in the eighth, after Klein had replaced Smitty in the seventh.

In a game tonight Mel Harder will face Emil (Dutch) Leonard of the Washington Nationals.

Stan Musial Regains Batting Lead As Cardinals Beat Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (AP)—Stan Musial, the defending batting champion from Danvers, Pa., topped the Phils into the national batting lead today. Behind Musial's scoring bat the Cardinals from St. Louis resumed their winning ways by trouncing the Phils 5-2, after losing two games and a "suspended" day in the last three days. Pittsburgh clung to second place by splitting a pair with New York, winning 2-1 after dropping the first game to the Giants 7-5. Chicago's Les Fanning blanked Brooklyn, 2-0, while the Braves and Bucky Walters hung up win No. 13 as Cincinnati, crossed Boston, 3-2, in a night game.

Chicago's Americans continued to drop out of first place, losing to the Boston Red Sox the weeks at a 4-0 past, but they moved to Joe Cronin's clan, over Al Gerheuser.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (AP)—Stan Musial, the defending batting champion from Danvers, Pa., topped the Phils into the national batting lead today. Behind Musial's scoring bat the Cardinals from St. Louis resumed their winning ways by trouncing the Phils 5-2, after losing two games and a "suspended" day in the last three days. Pittsburgh clung to second place by splitting a pair with New York, winning 2-1 after dropping the first game to the Giants 7-5. Chicago's Les Fanning blanked Brooklyn, 2-0, while the Braves and Bucky Walters hung up win No. 13 as Cincinnati, crossed Boston, 3-2, in a night game.

Chicago's Americans continued to drop out of first place, losing to the Boston Red Sox the weeks at a 4-0 past, but they moved to Joe Cronin's clan, over Al Gerheuser.

OHIO STATE LEAGUE LEADERS WIN AGAIN

The run became richer, the poor poorer in last night's Ohio State League games when the top division teams climbed another notch upward at the expense of the lower division trio. All three games were decided by one-run margins.

Newark, loop leader, triumphed at the expense of fourth-place Lima, 19 to 9.

Second-place Middletown won from Marion, 5 to 4, leaving the latter team in the loop cellar, 13 games behind the leaders.

Third-place Springfield won from fifth-place Zanesville, 1 to 0. Line scores of the two games, last night not involving Marion, are given herewith. The Marion game box score appears elsewhere on this page.

Zanesville 000 000 000—0 5 2

Newark 230 109 301—10 11 3
Wiesler, Collinsworth, Krieger and Fluertes; Jenkins, Pettit, Spence and Koppa.

All the Reds' runs were unearned. Boston was ungenerous only in the first inning, when they got both their runs. Tommy Holmes opened with a single, Ryan walked and both runners advanced on an infield out. Big Ab Wright shot a double to center scoring them both.

In the fifth, Chuck Workman fumbled Ray Mueller's grounder, Tipton singled, and, after two pop flies, Walters singled, scoring Mueller. Woody Williams doubled to score Tipton and Walters.

The New York Giants move into Crosley Field today for the first of three games with the Reds. Ed Heusser pitches for Cincinnati against Frank Seward for the New Yorkers.

NEWARK TO PLAY O. S. L. ALL-STARS

Newark will be the team to beat in the Ohio State League All-Star game July 12, and the game will be played at the Newark field.

These facts became apparent today when Newark retained its leadership of the league. It had previously been decided the All-Star team would play whatever Ohio State league team was in top position on July 1, which is today.

The lineup of the All-Star team probably will be announced next week when the results of a lineup contest among the fans in the six cities of the league are compiled.

Players getting the most votes from the fans will form the All-Star lineup.

A number of Marion fans are planning to attend the All-Star game at Newark.

No Radical Trend Seen in Canada Despite Recent Vote

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 1.—While the United States has given every indication of following a conservative trend on domestic matters during recent years, Canada has shown some signs of an opposite trend.

Two weeks ago the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (CCF), a comparatively new Canadian political party with Socialistic leanings, scored a major victory in the Saskatchewan Province elections, winning 47 of 51 seats in contests against the older Liberal and the Progressive-Conservative Party.

This "local" victory for the CCF in Saskatchewan does not mean, however, that all of Canada is taking a sudden radical turn. As a matter of fact, the CCF is not as strong throughout the Dominion as a whole today as it was eight or nine months ago.

This is shown in a special Gallup survey reported since the Saskatchewan elections. Whereas in September, 1943, the CCF stood equal in strength with MacKenzie King's Liberal Party and the Progressive Conservative Party, today it has fallen 14 percentage points behind the Liberal Party, nine behind the Progressive-Conservative Party.

Following is a table giving the relative voting strength of the three parties today as compared with September:

ALL VOTERS.

	Sept.	Today	Gain or Loss
Liberals	28%	35%	+7%
Prog.-Cons.	28	30	+2
CCF	29	21	-8
Other Parties	15	14	-1

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"THAT'S NOT even had a question," Harry Underwood said, giving his wife the teasing, comradely smile which I so often have seen on his face when he is answering some housewifely reminder of hers. "The men agreed among themselves, just before we came in, that the car was not to be left alone. The three guards who are to remain here for the duration of this private session of the war will not come into the house until the driver and the man who is to go back with Madge are ready to start. So, as I imagine your query stems from a desire to know how they're going to be led, I will go out, and get Madge and Joe from their perch, and bring them in and then turn over to Katie's feed box. Then when Madge is ready to start, back they'll be all set to change places with the valiant three who are going to stand guard here, for they must gain your approval, my liege lady! Have I your permission to sally forth?"

I wondered if he were not perhaps "spreading the frosting" a little thick, for the benefit of two boys who were regarding him with the wide-eyed awe worship which they always accord Harry Underwood, central figure of so many family meals with which they are conversant. But Lillian promptly punctured his pretense.

"Permission," she repeated scornfully. "You'll have the makings of me, my lordling, in another ten seconds if I don't see your coat tails flying out of that door."

He swept her an elaborate bow, but swiftly, with a wary eye on her, then turned, put his hands under the back of his coat, holding it out absurdly, and fairly ran for the door.

Spoke Casually

Then he sent them into the seventh heaven, casually, as if he were asking for a drink of water. "I wish you boys would come out to the ignored car with me," he said. "Have you flashlights? I've laid mine down somewhere. I'm terribly forgetful—getting old, I guess."

He could see his flashlight on the table where he had put it down, and was sure that he knew its exact location. But he prudently kept silent, as Junior said: "Oh, yes, sir! They're right here. We'll be with you in a second."

They dashed to the shelf where their own flashlights were resting, snatched them up and ranged themselves on either side of Lillian's big husband, who gave her a provocative wink over their heads just before he went out of the door.

Exchange Glances

Affectionate, amused understanding was in the look which flashed between Lillian and me as the door closed behind them.

"He always has every kid he sees eating out of his hand," she said.

"Don't omit the grown-ups," I warned, and there was tenderness in the laughter with which we tabled the subject as she drew me down the hall to my study.

"We'd better check," she said.

"Did I translate you correctly—armed car for ambulance, driver and four men—the chief for head surgeon, and his hideaway for Greenwich Village hospital?"

"Your examination paper is 100 percent," I said, "or will be when you tell me that you have that mourning costume with you."

Plans

"It's with the bags which Harry no doubt will have Joe and Gus bring in," she answered. "Now, here's the dope from your revered pater. He is spending the night at the hideaway, and has set his alarm for three o'clock. He does not expect you that soon, but he wants to have everything functioning for your reception, including wide open doors of the Chinese factory next to the hideaway."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Self-Dosing

There is no more pernicious and dangerous practice than the regular taking of some kind of drug. Even if you think you know what the drug is, it is a bad idea.

Even if you think you know what the drug is, it is a bad idea. I had charge of a gentleman once who had been assured he was dying of heart failure on account of the bluish discoloration of his skin.

After considerable work on him we found this discoloration was caused by the formation of a sulfur compound in his blood. And behind this was his habit of going across the street from his office every day to get something for a headache he was afraid he was going to have.

The headache preventive compound he took had a well-known name and any doctor would have assured him it was relatively harmless, but in his case it began to do something queer in his intestines and released a sulfur compound which, absorbed in his blood, made him feel and look like the dickens.

He recovered eventually, but he had quite an unhappy time of it.

Doctors are thought to be old fogies and scare-heads, or just actuated by jealousy, if they object to this habit of regular or indiscriminate self-dosing. But there is a reason for their objections.

Nowadays everybody who pulls a medicine before the public thinks he has to have some fancy name for it. It is impossible for a doctor even to remember what all of them are.

Chronic dosing is especially likely to breed a habit with people of nervous temperament. They need something to calm them down, to keep their brains from racing round and round, to stop headaches and they get so they take their medicine on the slightest provocation. They usually take a preparation containing bromides. They are not taking dope, they will tell you, and nothing that is habit forming and nothing that could do any harm.

Well, it so happens that bromides taken regularly in this way can result in all sorts of bodily upsets. I have before me the report on a man who had been taking migraine headache remedy which contained "nothing but bromides." He was picked up on the street in a confused mental state and his heart, skin, liver and nervous system were filled with a diseased cell infiltration of bromide origin. The lesson is that any medication taken regularly over a long period of time may turn on you.

Two experiences are fresh in the memories of any doctor who was so unfortunate as to have one of the patients. One was with cinchophen which was touted as a great remedy for arthritis. Well, arthritis or not it gave people cirrhosis of the liver and many died of it.

Another was an apparently infallible headache remedy named amino-pyrene, the name of which somehow caught the popular fancy both of doctors and the public generally. It was a good headache remedy in itself, but it had been adulterated before it was offered to the general use.

The adulteration was that it was mixed with a toxic substance called arsenic. It was a good headache remedy in itself, but it had been adulterated before it was offered to the general use.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.—When a person knows that a high temperature is a danger sign, but does not know what to do about it, is it good to do nothing? What about a person whose normal temperature is 98 and every time registers less than 97?

A.—A person does not act on a high temperature. There is no danger in a low temperature. A high temperature must be treated by 98.6 F. I presume at least 34 of the human race carry a daily temperature of 98 or slightly higher. And they do not lack vigor or health. The only definite condition mentioned in text books on diagnosis as being associated with a low body temperature is insufficient thyroid.

CURTAINS IGNITED

Persons were called to extinguish a fire at the Ralph family residence, 729-1 Silver street, caused by face curtains ignited in an open gas flame.

Loss was estimated at about $10. Persons from West Center street station and squad truck from Central responded at 2:41 p. m. yesterday.

NICE GOING, WILLOW. I GUESS I'LL BE A REGULAR CUSTOMER AT YOUR BLEACHERY!

AH! JUST LIKE IT WAS THE FIRST TIME A BOY EVER WHISTLED AT ME! AND I KNEW HE WASN'T WHISTLING A CAB!

IT'S REALLY SPECTACULAR! DO YOU SUPPOSE I COULD BE A SLONDE, TOO, MISS BURMA?

NO, WILLOW. I DON'T THINK YOU HAVE THE CORRECT ATTITUDE FOR IT! BEING A HONEY-HEAD IS A CAREER IN ITSELF! BESIDES, I HAVE SOME PLANS THAT CALL FOR YOU TO STAY ON THE DECK AND INTELLECTUAL SIZE!

AS THE GIRLS TALK UPSTAIRS IN THE OLD TEMPLE, ANOTHER PLANTIE FROM THE MOONSHON MOVIES IN BELOW!

HOPE YOU MEET A NICE MAN, TILLIE.

YOU AND YOUR HAWAIIAN SPELLS.

AS IF SITTING ON A CERTAIN ROCK'D MAKE ME FALL IN LOVE WITH THE NEXT MAN I MEET.

HELLO! DIDNT I SEE YOU ON THE TRANSPORT?

WHY, YES.

IT SEEMS AS IF I'D KNOWN YOU ALWAYS.

GOSH, THAT LEGEND MAY NOT BE TRUE, BUT THIS LOVE IS!

BEING THE WIFE OF J. PIEDMONT ROCKABILT, THE MULTIMILLIONAIRE FINANCIER.

NO WONDER THEY SAID SHE WASNT REGISTERED AT THAT SWANKY HOTEL. THEY ONLY KNOW HER BY HER FAMOUS MARRIED NAME.
